2) Reasons for Revision

The Company has revised its consolidated earnings forecast as stated above because its consolidated financial results for the fiscal year ending March 2027 are now expected to exceed the previous forecast. This is primarily attributable to higher-than-assumed prices for metals, including tungsten and copper, mainly during the first half of the fiscal year, as well as pricing adjustments for cemented carbide products and increased sales volumes of semiconductor-related products.

The dividend forecast remains unchanged from the previous forecast, in accordance with the Company's dividend policy, which targets a DOE of 2.5% based on shareholders' equity at the end of the previous fiscal year.

(Note) The forecasts set out above are based on assumptions regarding economic conditions, market trends and other factors as of the date of this announcement. Actual results may differ from these forecasts due to various factors.
